

Plans Now Made to Absorb C.C.F. Overwhelming Military in Civilian Life

PLAN FOR SOLDIERS IN CIVILIAN LIFE

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions, has issued a pamphlet informing members of armed forces and Canadians generally of the steps which have been taken for rehabilitation of men and women of the forces. The plan aims to give all the opportunity for a wage-earning position; through special training, financial assistance, and other means. But it is warned that it can only help those desirous of helping themselves, and knowing what is available.

What the Servicemen Can Do Now. The main job now is to win the war, but all armed forces except those actually on front lines have usually some spare time. Free hours may be usefully spent (1) those with jobs to return to may read books on their trade or profession (2) take one of the correspondence courses (3) attend lectures on post-war affairs.

Handling of Demobilization The three services will not have identical plans for demobilization, but certain basic plans have been made. Between cessation of war and day of discharge, every chance will be given to take up educational and vocational studies in preparation for return to civil life. Courses overseas will be linked with those in Canada. As personnel are available for discharge they will go through the normal process—medical and dental examination, receipt of clothing allowance, discharge certificate, rehabilitation grant.

They may keep uniform and personal necessities. The service man, if not an officer, will get $65 to help buy civilian clothing. The rehabilitation grant will be paid to the service man completing 183 days of service. It provides 30 days extra pay and payment to dependents of one month's extra allowance plus assigned pay if they have been receiving this before discharge. Free transportation and travelling expenses are given to the point where the man was residing before enlistment.

Rehabilitation Branch A central Rehabilitation Board has been created. District Boards have been set up at key centres. These review applications and authorize benefits. They follow up cases of grants made, and training instituted, and co-operate with pensions officers.

Veterans' Welfare officers have also been stationed in key centres. They work through Employment and Selective Service offices to help find jobs, and advise on rehabilitation affairs.

There are also Citizens Volunteer committees and Canadian Legion branches.

Reinstatement in Former Jobs Under the Reinstatement Act, if an ex-service man was a bona fide, permanent employee, and applies for reinstatement within three months of his discharge, it is the duty of the employer to give him employment no less favorable than would have prevailed had not war interrupted. He must be given advantage of any seniority rules, or preference according to dates of first employment. The Act does not apply if the ex-service man is physically or mentally incapable of doing the work available. The man must apply within three months after discharge from services in Canada.

Post Discharge Reestablishment Order This Order authorizes Dept. of Pensions to pay subsistence allowances to a discharged man or woman for any period up to the length of service, or for a maximum of 52 weeks, although the period may be extended beyond that time in case of those taking training or completing education. In case of out-of-work temporary incapacitation allowance, entitlement expires 18 months after discharge.

Benefits and grants come in five classes. Number 1 is for the period when discharged members are out of work, if the person is available for work but unable to get suitable employment. Number 2 applies to those taking vocational training for establishment in skilled trades. Number 3 is designed to assist farmers and those wishing to embark on private enterprise, before returns come in. Number 4 is to assist those who, after discharge, may be temporarily unable to work. This condition of building up health may entitle them to benefit. Number 5 is to take care of future professional men and women who have seen service. A plan of grants has been set up based on period of service, scholastic effort and qualifications. Discharged members, where merited, can be carried through to university graduation. There are the usual grants for maintenance and payment of university fees.

For Vocational Training, the applicant may meet with the welfare officer or local Canadian Legion. If it is felt he would benefit by training, the case comes before the District Rehabilitation Board for approval. Once training is approved, maintenance grants are allowed. These grants are $60 a month, or in case of married men, $80 a month, with an additional dependents' allowance. This will not extend as a rule beyond 52 weeks. Those in hospital may take correspondence courses with fees paid, and similar fees are paid for those wishing

First Test of Socialist Party Will Come in Neighboring Province. Landslide for Victor Over Long-Entrenched Liberal Regime

The C.C.F. party was elected in Saskatchewan with an overwhelming majority, reducing former Liberal strength to a shadow. Early returns showed the C.C.F. elected in 43 seats, with Liberals elected in four. The remaining five seats are likely to further increase the C.C.F. majority. Only once before, since 1905, have the Liberals been beaten in Saskatchewan. The Conservatives had a term of office early in 1930's, but in 1935 the Liberals went in again.

In their achievement the C.C.F. gained 28 seats from Liberals, two from Unity and two from Social Credit. Their pre-election standing in the legislature was fifteen. Almost the entire Liberal ministry went down to defeat.

Rev. T. C. Douglas, premier-elect, is Scottish born. He is 40 years of age and came to Canada 34 years ago. His education was gained largely by manual labor which put him through university.

Public speakers and newsmen from all over Canada, made Saskatchewan their stamping ground for several weeks previous to election. Analysis of the vote indicated that C.C.F. had large Conservative support, and while a majority for the C.C.F. had been landslide.

According to news reports the victorious party concentrated on improvement in agricultural lines, education and social welfare. Federal policies entered largely into platform oratory in respect to farm products, policies, man power, demobilization and post-war planning. It is conceded that quite a proportion of the vote was based on "It's time for a change", expected no one was prepared for a but the C.C.F. is growing actively and numerically.

Later on soldiers overseas and outside the province elsewhere will vote for the election of three soldier members. Arrangements for the overseas vote are incomplete yet.

Mr. Douglas expects to go to Ottawa shortly in an effort to develop the province industrially through making industrial use of farm produce. He speaks of a four-year plan of reconstruction without drastic initial changes.

Nat. Forest Policy

(Bowmanville Statesman)

Speaking last week at Campbellton, New Brunswick, John Bracken announced a national forest policy for Canada in a way that showed he has a comprehensive grasp of our national forest problems.

His plan is to set up a special Dominion agency to deal with forest matters without infringing upon the autonomy of the Provinces. He put forward convincing reasons for greater participation of the federal government in the study of forest problems and evolution of sound, protective policies for their utilization. Today, responsibility for orderly replacement and efficient use lies mostly with the forest industries holding cutting rights on Crown lands, which constitute 90 per cent of the nation's forests. Greater co-operation, therefore, is a prime need and it would seem that the Federal authority might wisely be incorporated into the picture.

Pointing out clearly his awareness of the pitfalls to be avoided in conflict of authority, Mr. Bracken gave assurance as to how to avoid them. Since nearly half of all the timber destroyed each year by cutting or natural causes is lost by fire, insects and disease, it would seem there is a solid foundation to justify an enlightened national policy extending beyond short-view or sectional and commercial interests. Research, planning and continuing conferences among all concerned is the wise, long range policy in regard to national forests. With the stipulations envisioned in the Bracken scheme the public generally will be in agreement with it.

With 47 percent of service personnel in this war having high or technical training as compared with 13 percent in the last war, the number of those who might qualify for university training is large. All qualified at time of enlistment, or who can qualify within 15 months after discharge, may receive this opportunity. Length of service is a governing factor in receiving government assistance. For example, an ex-service man with two full years in the service would receive 24 months of assistance. If a student fully merits further assistance toward graduation this may be allowed. Post-graduate opportunities will also be available for special merit or conditions.

Further post-war planning in respect to pensionable disability, treatment branches, pension setup and disability awards, Veterans' Land Act, etc., will be published next week.

Rev. Peter Dawson, M.L.A., will speak at the Red Cross school on Friday, June 23rd, at 8 p.m. His subject will be: "The New Boundary of the Foothills School Unit." All who are interested in this subject should attend.

They will attend to the purchasing of cups also for the hall. The sum of $10 was voted to the Prisoner-of-War Fund and $25 to the Rest Room in Vulcan. Mrs. McRoberts and Mrs. Healy, the ditty bag committee, reported that three bags have been packed and sent and three more are at present being filled. War in Quebec

(R. J. Needham, Calgary Herald)

The principal issue in the coming Quebec election is likely to be conscription. The people of French Canada will be urged by some speakers to vote for the Liberal Regime in Quebec on the grounds that the Liberal regime in Ottawa has spared them the horrors of conscription. They will be urged by others to vote against the Liberal regime in the province because the Liberal regime at Ottawa has actually forced the horrors of conscription upon them.

Last week Premier Godbout made it clear that he opposed conscription for overseas service. According to Le Canada, the Montreal Liberal daily, he said: "If we had not had Prime Minister King at the head we would have had conscription for overseas, and in its wake civil war. Had we had a coalition government we would have had conscription for overseas the next day, and there would have been fighting in the streets. If Mr. King was defeated tomorrow, we would have conscription which we do not want the following day. I am personally convinced that there will be no conscription for overseas service as long as Mr. King is prime minister, because there is no need for conscription."

War Saving Stamp

Day on June 30th

Friday, June 30, has been set aside by retail merchants of Alberta as a day for special sale of War Savings Stamps. The 8,000 retail merchants of the province are being asked to sell stamps that day to as great an extent as possible as a sign that the invasion has been substantially backed. In a survey of stamp sales throughout the Dominion of Canada the National War Finance Committee points out that the purchase of stamps in Alberta are the lowest in the Dominion.

In view of the excellent record Alberta always makes during Victory Loans they are unable to account for the poor showing of the province where War Savings Stamp purchases are concerned. They point out, quite rightly, that War Savings Stamps are one of the best investments available in Canada today. Every $4 worth of stamps purchased rewards the purchaser with $5 return at the end of seven years, which is at the rate of about 3 1/2% on your investment. They think that stamps should be sold widely throughout this province and they feel that if the people are conversant with the wonderful investment opportunities they would be buying in larger quantities than they are at present. Let's all put our shoulder to the wheel and see if we can't put Alberta in the forefront of stamp purchasers in the Dominion.

Obituary

Capt. Joseph Dobbs Dies Of Wounds

Citizens of Vulcan and district were grieved to learn on Monday that Captain Joseph Dobbs, 36, died from wounds received overseas.

Born in Taber, he attended school there and later was employed for a brief while in the Lethbridge Brewery before moving to Vulcan in 1929, when his parents purchased the Imperial Hotel.

For some time Mr. Dobbs, with his mother, managed the hotel before enlisting in the Canadian Active Army in 1940. He has served overseas for three years.

Surviving is his wife, Frances; two children, Marlene and Josephine; his mother and his sister, Mrs. H. T. Lamont.

His father predeceased him in 1942. The Advocate joins the many friends of the Dobbs family in extending sympathy in their bereavement.

Northern Neighbor Viewing Russia

Time Magazine carries a story of the first Soviet ambassador to Canada, who is George Zarubin. "The Soviet Union is a neighbor second only to U.S.A. in importance to Canada," says Time. "Russia shares with the Dominion the control of the globe's strategic northern airways routes."

Previously Canada's affairs with Russia were served by London's Soviet embassy, but when the Nazis marched in toward Moscow the Canadian-Russian relationship led to exchange of ambassadors. The Soviet purchased the mansion of John Booth, the lumber king, in Ottawa, and this has become quite a social centre. Its 32 rooms include offices and residential quarters with the ambassador's wife and 14-year-old son occupying 20 rooms. The staff ministry is the second largest in Ottawa.

Forty Canadian cities have adopted Russian towns in sending relief, and even Quebec's Cardinal Villeneuve endorsed Russian relief drives.

As Time says: "The cordial relationship with Russia has already paid off to the amount of a 25 million dollar order for hydro electric equipment and this may be only a drop in the bucket in relation to future trade agreements."

Canada's exchange ambassador is Leolyn Wilgress, who is regarded as one of Canada's ablest civil servants. He is in Russia in economic interests, and his wife is a Russian.

As the bloody fighting in Northern France continues, the status of the zombies will fall even lower than it has already. We can understand the personal animosity of the active service men for draftees, but we do not think civilians should follow this example. There has been too much name calling already—not only new-minted but even encouraged by the government itself. If the people of Canada wish to quarrel over this, they should quarrel not with zombies themselves but with the system which produces them. We believe most people in Canada detect that system. They would like to see it scrapped, and we venture to predict that it is going to be scrapped.

A pleasant social evening was spent in card games and renewing old acquaintances. Lunch was served by the ladies of the district, after which Mr. D. Lewis, on behalf of the community, presented Mr. Storey with a handsome club bag, and Mrs. Dowling also made a short speech adding his regrets to those of Mr. Lewis for the cause of Mr. Storey's retirement from farming. Mr. Storey and Mrs. Dowling thanked everyone for the gift of remembrance and the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne" brought the evening to a close.

Many Farmers Are Over Sixty Years

Seventy thousand or 10 percent of the total number of farm owners in Canada are over 60 years of age and have no direct heirs to carry on. This information, it is understood, was revealed when an official survey was undertaken with the object of locating farms for discharged service men. But it was also discovered that the great majority of these 70,000 farm owners had no intention of selling immediately. They hoped for either one of two developments:

1. Higher farm prices later, or—
2. Accumulation of a better nest egg from present remunerative farm operations. — The Financial Post, Toronto.

C. C. F. LANDSLIDE

The victory of the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan has been overwhelming, leaving the victorious party with such a backing as to keep it very much in the limelight in respect to performance. The huge majority will enable the government to make good on its promises with a minimum of internal interference.

It is a most disciplinary experience for any opposition to get into power. The transition from airy, untrammelled opposition to responsible administration is extremely sobering. We have had quite an experience of revolutionary parties in the west, and after the first wild flurry they steady down to the familiar pattern. After ten years in power they become truly conservative in outlook and performance. Then another party of lavish promise steps in. At the time the change occurs, each successful uprising is regarded as "the dawn of a new day" or "wholesale ruin," depending which side you're on. But results have been neither as idyllic nor as devastating as forecast. Life goes on.

C.C.F. leader Douglas has already announced "no sensational moves", which is usually the first utterance of a new party coming into power. He says there will be no big move for governmental ownership and control. But the nature of pre-election commitments requires certain distinctively socialistic moves. Mr. Douglas has promised that public or cooperative ownership will be encouraged and a four-year reconstruction program will be instituted. It is unfortunate that so many provincial ambitions are linked up with federal co-operation—unfortunate because it can provide a ready alibi for any failure without offering clear proof of the ability of the provincial government to demonstrate that its policies are workable and profitable to the majority.

Apparently the large rural vote had no fear that public ownership of land would be instituted. There seems general opinion that the tremendous majority did not represent wholesale support of socialism so much as a vote of protest against those in power provincially and federally. This "voting against" instead of "voting for" is not a thoroughly dependable type of vote, nor was it fair that federal policies were made to play such a part in the campaign. But it all does cast a light on the temper of the people.

Legislation which has developed as a result of the war is all restrictive in nature, and hence unpopular, even though necessary in the main. Federal Minister Gardiner has not enhanced his popularity by agricultural policies and ever changing regulations. No one element of population has worked harder than farmers and under greater difficulties, and they are further harassed by continual changes of regulations. There is also reluctance to give them guarantee of assured prices for postwar years. The decade of depression is still an open wound with all people, and the fear of repetition is in no wise diminished even though war years have brought temporary improvement.

It is curious that the electorate is not more hesitant about committing itself to the regimentation which is an inevitable part of the C.C.F. program. The public generally is most loud in protest against the federal regimentation which has resulted from war-raiding against inefficiency of Boards, and against the Little Caesars who have sprung up everywhere to interfere in private affairs. Yet under C.C.F. continued and greatly increased controls seem inescapable. And no matter how wise or how good or necessary an idea may be at the fountain head, it is likely to become badly distorted under the interpretation and authority of the little fellows sitting on local boards.

Saskatchewan is the first province to declare outright for a C.C.F. government. Every step will be observed with interest, not only in a provincial sense, but in all its federal implications.

FULL TIME—OVERTIME

Should you have a notion that the life of a country editor is a cushy one, listen to the lament of one weekly newspaper editor at Viking, Alta. He writes:

"This week the publisher of this paper is linotype operator, machinist, pressman, adman, jobman, stenographer, bookkeeper and reporter. We are also process issuer, keeper of the records for the income tax branch, the unemployment insurance branch, the Workmen's Compensation Board, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the Malta air cadet squadron, and publicity chairman for the Sixth Victory Loan. We attend meetings of the hospital board, sing in the choir and in our spare time we listen to the tough time the other guys are having."—Exchange.

Maxime Raymond, Bloc Populaire leader, upset Hon. J. L. Halsey's serenity when he queried the advisability of Canada's mutual aid contribution of a billion to the Allies. He wondered what British contribution to the mutual arrangement was. Mr. Halsey said "mutual" was based on the fact that when a nation sends its men out, that is part of the common cause, and the idea is not "man for man" or "machine for machine". It is a common cause.

The big news of the week is cottonwood fluff, and the females of the species are making themselves more conspicuous than ever. Usually some one has the happy thought that he can burn the fluff, and the result is a call on the fire brigade. The high wind Sunday night carried off the ripened cottonwood from the tops of the trees, but there is plenty more just gathering strength.

When harvesting starts this season considerable space will be available for deliveries of grain in country elevators. Many customers of Alberta Pool Elevators have been prevented from delivering to these elevators in the past few years due to congestion of facilities. This fall they will likely have the opportunity of again becoming patrons of this farmers' grain organization.

Venereal Disease and Control

Talking Pictures Presented at High School and at Public Meeting Warn of Menace, and Urge Immediate Treatment

"Beware of quacks and self treatment" was an important warning given through the talking pictures on Venereal Diseases which were presented before the high school on Thursday afternoon, and at a public meeting on Monday evening. This pictorial presentation held locally was a part of the national campaign of education on the subject, which is being carried out across Canada. The Public Health Service of Canada. This is the sponsoring body, and Miss Stewart and Mrs. Gibson of the Fort-Hills Health Unit were in charge.

In the case of syphilis, according to the address which accompanied the films, the first sign of possible infection is a sore at the point where the germ enters the body. This demands immediate consultation with an accredited physician, or a visit to a clinic. The Wassermann test is one of several, and modern science ensures early detection. A case which is diagnosed early gives the patient an 86% chance of cure if he follows instructions. He must be prepared to tell where he got the disease and what contacts he has had in order that all avenues of further infection to others can be stopped. After months of treatment, the patient may get impatient, but it is most important that he follows through to ensure complete cure.

The blood test should be routine for expectant mothers, thereby preventing a world of tragedy.

The warning given was that neglect of this disease is an overwhelming cost to the nation and to the individual. It is responsible for a large percentage of insanity and paralysis; a good percentage of heart disease; some blindness in little children; still births and infant deaths.

Combined educational efforts are organizing to enlighten the public; to urge that all who have the slightest suspicion that they may have contracted the disease consult a doctor at once, and if their suspicions are confirmed to follow scrupulously all instructions. The scourge of syphilis can be removed by intelligent facing of facts.

The warning was given that the greatest number of infections are from 16 to 30 years. Syphilis and gonorrhea are spread mainly by sexual contact, and syphilis may also be developed through kissing. Symptoms may appear from ten days to ten weeks after infection. Later on, early symptoms may disappear but the germ is there, unless treated, and many die through failure to take early precaution.

Accurate diagnosis, modern treatment and faithful adherence to rules of treatment offer every hope that the social curse may be conquered with public co-operation. The first step in treatment is to make the condition non-infectious to others. If an expectant mother is treated the infant will be non-infected.

Gonorrhea is indicated by acute inflammation of the sex and urinary organs. With women it may spread to the womb, and the disease may have a sterilizing effect. There should be no hesitation in seeking treatment, and above all, the services of quacks should be avoided.

The battle must be fought, said the lecturer, in schools, colleges, armed services, factories, stores and homes everywhere that human beings are associated. New and powerful weapons are available in blood and microscopic tests; in chemicals and in early check. Cities and towns must be searched for sources of infection. Much of the infection comes from easy "pick-ups", and the hidden streets. One infected person may carry to many others, and quacks thrive on the uninformed and the terrified.

The community is the fighting ground. Those who cannot pay should receive free treatment. There should be blood tests and complete examination of all young people prior to marriage.

A concluding feature was the presentation of the cost to the nation in maintenance of hospitals and public institutions for the care of people who need not have been permanent sufferers. The cost to future generations was also graphically shown. "It costs more money not to cure these diseases than to cure them," said the speaker. "Every day casualties mount, and a great offensive must be fought. The fight can be won."

DISCUSSED BY H.C.

The invasion of France did not open under very propitious conditions. There were signs of dissension among the Allies. Stalin had taken his own line on some things without even informing his colleagues of his intention, and Russian newspapers had been free to criticize the Anglo-Americans for delay in reaching D-day. There were signs too that while Churchill and Roosevelt had seen eye to eye with respect to France, yet latterly Churchill had sought to have Roosevelt accept DeGaulle more fully and cordially as the leader of France in the meantime.

DeGaulle had shown a querulous if not truculent disposition, but although he had been cold-shouldered, he broadcast an appeal to French partisans to do their duty by the Allies. Then he spoiled it all with a public interview in which he found fault with the Allied command for assuming civil command and issuing French currency without his authority. Thus has he justified Mr. Roosevelt if it was Mr. Roosevelt who kept him and his committee from following up the army of liberation with French civil administration. He is interfering with the spring work in his eagerness to be in at the harvest.

Another jarring note added to the discord when Churchill, to humor Franco, upheld the Spanish government against its critics in language not pleasing to Roosevelt and certainly distasteful to Stalin. Even the weather turned sour just as the day approached.

If there was schism in our ranks, there was schism also in the Axis. Italy was out of it, and Mussolini's appeal to Italians carried no weight. Japan paid a deaf ear to Hitler's appeal for diversion. There was jealousy and bickering among German generals and a sense of defeat among the rank and file. This is nothing new among allies. The same prevailed in the other war but we did not know about the enemies' troubles until it was all over and generals and statesmen were writing memoirs and quoting from their diaries.

An invasion reporter says there was considerable sea-sickness among the boys but it did not affect their morale. No one who has ever been sea-sick will credit that story. Morale and mal de mer are an ill-matched pair.

The fighting in France seems to be going on prosperously, but even the high command cannot afford to go into detail and we must expect some reverses and casualties, but we do not think, however, that it will pursue the policy that deceived Canadians after Dieppe. It will be remembered that the Premier cabled congratulations and that for several weeks news despatches to Canadian papers featured it as a glorious success.

Have you ever heard of Georges Guenette? Well, you will, for he is a live issue in Quebec, and he is a live issue because he is dead—killed unfortunately and unintentionally by a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He was a conscript in the Home Defence Army and was 24. Nearly two years ago he deserted. Last year a police sergeant was beaten up while looking for him in his home village of St. Lambert. This year, on May 7th, two constables tried to get him and he was shot while trying to escape. There was an inquest and a verdict of accidental death, but the tragedy had political potentialities too great to be ignored with a provincial election on. An outcry went up that impelled the Attorney General to lay a charge of manslaughter. The agitation increased so he agreed to enlarge the charge to murder.

No matter what other results may follow, one thing is certain—the pol-

CUT SMALL PIG LOSSES

We all know that losses among small pigs from anaemia ... which is a lack of red corpuscles in the blood ... are high during the winter months. Since this is due to lack of iron, many farmers feel that summer pigs are protected adequately from anaemia—for the pigs are outside, and get iron from the ground in which they root.

ACTUALLY ... many summer pigs are anaemic. The practical, safe and inexpensive method of preventing losses is to feed either IRON SULPHATE or REDUCED IRON to ALL small pigs.

There's real economy, too, in feeding SHUR-GAIN HOG CONCENTRATE to hogs WINTER AND SUMMER!

Fed on grain ALONE, a hog requires 1,100 pounds of grain from weaning to marketing. The SHUR-GAIN WAY ... 50 pounds of SHUR-GAIN HOG CONCENTRATE will save you 400 pounds of grain for the same period. Not only do you make an extra $3.00 per hog, but with the prospect of feed grain shortage in Canada, this grain saving is a NECESSITY. iticians who promised there would be no conscription cannot enforce it in Quebec even for home defence. There is a solid, fanatical opposition to it that cannot be overcome. If Mr. King and Mr. Meighen were rival candidates in a French constituency we venture that one would get as many votes as the other, and that would not be many. Indeed, Mr. Meighen might pull a majority over his opponent, who on the other hand would be regarded as having betrayed them, although that charge could come with more force from the majority that voted "yes" in his plebiscite on the issue.

You won't get to Berlin in an Armchair!

If Canada and the United Nations had depended upon "Armchair Soldiers" to fight this war, the Nazis and Japs would have grabbed this country long ago.

There is no "Royal Road" to Berlin. It's fighting all the way and Canada's Army needs every man it can get. That's why, today, you should volunteer for overseas service. You'll need months of intensive training to make you fighting-fit.

Don't be a stay-at-home and let the other fellow do it. Get into a man's uniform with the G.S. badge of honour on your sleeve. If we're going to win this war, we'll have to do more than just read about it in the papers.

Reduce Losses From Wild Oats

The wild oat problem causes a greater reduction in yield than any other weed, says H. J. Mather, Supervisor of Weed Control. The oats at the top of the spike usually ripen before those lower down. Because of this, ripening and shattering continue over a considerable period. If wild oats are cut later than four days after emergence of the head they will mature seed that will germinate.

Unless careful consideration is given to the time of cultivation the operation may be wasted. Usually, one or two crops will grow in the spring and can be destroyed, then germination may almost cease for the remainder of the season. It is because of this fact that summerfallow so often fails when cultivating to destroy wild oats. If the plant is cut off before it reaches a height of about five inches the severed portion may strike new roots and produce a normal plant.

Instead of summerfallow for wild oats, the use of cultivation combined with a short season crop such as Olli Barley or greenfeed is recommended. With the use of such a crop two crops of wild oats may be killed in the spring and the barley or greenfeed harvested before many of the wild oats ripen and shatter. The crops should then be followed by fall cultivation to promote the germination of as many wild oats as possible so that they may be killed by the frost.

Would Introduce Metric System

Simplification of Measures Instead Of Cumbersome Present System

J. D. Ratcliff, writing in Toronto Star points out that practically every country in the whole world except Canada, United States and Britain has adopted the metric system of measures. Our system is cumbersome and absurd. For example feathers are weighed by avordupois, gold by troy, and a pound of feathers, unless terms are defined carefully, weighs more than a pound of gold. After once trying the metric system no country has ever gone back to the old system. No one can actually define the units in our system. The grains, scruples, pennyweights; the three kinds of tons; the 56 kinds of bushels.

Metric is the decimal system we use in our money, applied to weights and measures. Everything is in units of ten.

There will be big jobs to be done in the postwar world. Soldiers from overseas will have become accustomed to kilometres, metres, litres. Now is the time for us to adjust ourselves to this simpler system. Because of time saving and wear and tear on brains, many machine companies and factories use the metric system. Physicians write prescriptions in metric. We buy vitamins by metric. Our decimal monetary system is the essence of simplicity.

Take a problem: To convert 11 pints 2 gills into gallons takes time. But to convert 6,479 cubic centimetres into litres one needs only to place a decimal point .6479 litres.

Educators estimate that the metric system in eliminating fractions would save at least a year of time in the arithmetic course. A railroad estimating by metric would save $50,000 a year in paper work.

Adoption of metric would put everything on one standard. Inertia is responsible for our clinging to our present absurd system. The foot for example, was originally anyone's foot regardless of shoe size. Edward II said two barley corns made an inch. Henry I specified the yard as the distance from the tip of the royal nose to the tip of the royal right thumb. The rod was the sum of 16 left feet placed heel to toe. Thus our hopeless patchwork of measurements sprang up.

French scientists, during the French revolution, decided that the basic unit of measurement would be the metric which was one ten-millionth of the distance from pole to Equator, roughly equivalent to our yard, 39.37 inches. The metre was divided into 100 equal parts, centimetres; multiplied by 1000 for the kilometre. The metric system of land measure is the hectare—10,000 square metres, roughly 2½ acres. In water measurement there are three basic units—litre, gram and metre.

Our engineers going to foreign places anticipate difficulty in the new units of measurements. But they have no difficulty. Adoption of the metric system would give great advantage in world trade. Japan and Germany had trade advantages in South America in prewar days because they had similar weights and measures. Educators, manufacturers, engineers, and physicians are overwhelmingly in favor of change.

Jim Dewie of this town.

Since the outbreak of war the federal government has paid the Bell Telephone Co. a total of $7,471,680. The three defence departments report phone bills which total over $3,000,000.

Inflation and Deflation... Evil Companions

Past wars have always brought some degree of inflation.

Goods were scarce... Prices and wages skyrocketed to unnatural heights.

Then one day the war stopped...

in due time goods became plentiful again.

Scarcity prices could no longer be demanded and "spiralling" prices went "pop!"

and came down with a bang.

people stopped buying because they thought prices would go still lower merchandise dropped in value—retailers went bankrupt factories closed and unemployment followed farms were foreclosed distress was general and deflation was in the saddle.

That is why in this war prices are controlled—so that they will not ruin buyers in a rise or sellers in a slump.

Price ceilings—wage and salary controls—rationing—Victory Bonds—increased taxation—are all part of a grand strategy to head off inflation—thus preventing deflation.
